

We list below the initial placements of our new Ph.D.'s in the last dozen years. Many of our Ph.D.'s have gone into academia and have been actively engaged in teaching, research and service at colleges and universities in the U.S. and abroad. Others have accepted research functions and economists' posts at research institutions, international organizations, government research offices, research departments of large corporations, and professional firms. In the list below, unless otherwise stated, all placements at colleges and universities are tenure-track assistant professors at economics departments.
